

Contents

PREFACE xiii

INTRODUCTION

On the Role of Criticism in the Development of Modern Art 1

- A Typology of Criticism
- Art Writing in Germany
- Tensions between Art History and Art Criticism

CHAPTER 1

Approaches to Munich: Art and Intellectual Thought, 1900–1914 29

- First Meetings: 1900, 1911, and Der Blaue Reiter
- Provincialism as a Source of Style-Consciousness
- Paris and Munich
- The Sociology of Fashion and the Quest for Solidarity
- The Impact of Nietzsche

CHAPTER 2

New Orientations of Sensibility, 1917–25 77

- The War Years and Their Aftermath
- Expressionism in Germany and “Isms” in Russia
- Russian Formalism
- German Theories of Romanticism
- The Weimar Bauhaus as an Environment

CHAPTER 3

Codification and the Constructive Uses of Theory, 1925–33 115

- The Dessau Years
- Concepts of Photography
- Painting in Relation to Photography and Surrealism
- The Critical Theory of the Frankfurt School
- Gestalt Psychology, Elemental Art, and Other Sources of Stimulus

CHAPTER 4

Artists in Exile and the Uses of the Imagination, 1933–40 153

- Klee and Kandinsky in Exile
- Benjamin and Adorno in Relation to Klee and Kandinsky
- Writers in Exile: Musil in Parallel to Klee
- Broch and Kandinsky
- Further Analogies in the Condition of Exile

CONCLUSION

Signs, Metaphors, and Allegory in Twentieth-Century Art 185

POSTLUDE

Art without Affiliation as a Critical Problem 193

CHRONOLOGY OF EVENTS 197

PLATES 219

BIBLIOGRAPHY 257

INDEX 271