

Contents

Introduction	13
Walser as marginal writer	13
Walser's Mikrogramme	16
The challenge of the borderline	18
Towards a Hybrid Subjectivity	19
Challenging the site of enunciation: The stereotype as fetish	21
The challenge of hybridity	22
Mimicry as a strategy for subversion	23
Mimicry, Mimesis, Parody: Walser's hybrid subjectivity	25
Chapter 1: Replaying the pre-texts	29
Walser's Märchen	30
Rapunzel lets her hair down	36
Walser's modern Märchen	42
Telling the Nation: Walser's Retellings of the Tellsage	43
Walser after Schiller	45
From Mikrogramm to Feuilleton : Mimicry in action	51
'Ein Unsterblicher'	54
Revision as Conformism	58
Feuilleton as Metatext	59
Walser's mimicry of the Feuilleton	62
Conclusion: Walser's 'sly civility' of cultural authority	63
Chapter 2: The Text as Battlefield	65
Staged Subversion: Robert Walser's Dramatic Scenes	67
'Grieder / Grunder'	70
Staged subjectivity	73
Dramatizing the Reader	74
Walser and the Literaturbetrieb	76
'Eine Art Fabrik oder Industrietablisement'	78
"Mißerfolge haben etwas Liebes"	80
Narrator as editor	83
The Hybrid Subject	86

Chapter 3: Authorship, Authority, Autonomy and Ambivalence	88
The Death and Rebirth of the Author	89
Affecting Authority	92
Inscribing Hierarchy: The Narrator-Reader Relationship	95
Expectation, anticipation and confusion	100
Chapter 4: The Battle of the Sexes	103
Judith Butler, Gender Trouble	104
Walser's form of Gender Trouble	106
'in der Nähe die Fremde': Walser's Presentation of the Feminine	107
Lady on high	108
Paying court to courtly love	110
Lowly maidservant	112
The artist on the margins	114
Performance as life and life as performance: Walser's performance artists	114
Literary Women	116
Walser's female correspondents	117
Woman at the centre of the labyrinth	118
Overcoming Masculinity: Walser's Men	121
Establishing masculinity: men at work	122
Staging masculinity	127
Performing Gender: Sex in Dialogue	128
Gender in Action	132
Language and ambivalence	134
Gender and Race: Orientalism	135
The moral of the story	136
Negotiating subjectivity	137
Productive Parody: Walser's gendered subjectivity	138
Chapter 5: The Language of Hybridity	140
Gender and text	141
Luce Irigaray: Productive Mimesis and Dissident Subjectivity	143
Mimesis as Subversion	145
Walser's mimesis	147
'Spät bis alle Nacht herumziehende Jünglinge'	148
Revision as Masculinization	160
'Dienstmädchen und Dichter'	160
Editing as 'Sprachsparsamkeit'	164
Censoring the narrator	166
Suppressing sadomasochism	167

Femininity and Subversion	169
Gender and writing	171
Hybridity and Transgression: 'Der heie Brei'	173
Writing beyond language: "streicherei"	175
Metonymy and desire	176
The Hybrid Reader	178
Conclusion	181
Challenging Cultural Norms	181
The productive potential of mimetic strategies	182
Challenging Subjectivity	183
Bibliography	185
Index of cited texts	193