

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
Introduction: An Anthropology of Postsocialism Daphne Berdahl	1
Talking Transit and Spectating Transition: The Moscow Metro Alaina Lemon	14
To Hear the Voices Still Heard: On Synagogue Restoration in Eastern Europe Philip V. Bohlman	40
The Prague Experience: Gay Male Sex Tourism and the Neocolonial Invention of an Embodied Border Matti Bunzl	70
Contested Landscapes: Reconstructing Environment and Memory in Postsocialist Saxony-Anhalt Hermine G. De Soto	96
The Shape of National Time: Daily Life, History, and Identity during Armenia's Transition to Independence, 1991–1994 Stephanie Platz	114
Memory, History, and Remembrance Work in Dresden Elizabeth A. Ten Dyke	139
“We’ve Kicked the Habit”: (Anti)Politics of Art’s Autonomy and Transition in Hungary Anna Szemere	158
Tropes of Depth and the Russian Soul: Openings and Closings in Post-Soviet Siberia Dale Pesmen	181

Afterword	209
Martha Lampland	219
References	241
Contributors	243
Index	