

C O N T E N T S

Acknowledgments	vii
About the Contributors	ix
Series Editor's Foreword	xiii
Introduction	1
Cristina Malcolmson and Mihoko Suzuki

PART I MANUSCRIPT AND DEBATE

- 1 Christine de Pizan's City of Ladies in Early Modern England 15
Cristina Malcolmson
- 2 Anne Southwell and the Pamphlet Debate:
The Politics of Gender, Class, and Manuscript 37
Elizabeth Clarke

PART II PRINT, PEDAGOGY, AND THE QUESTION OF CLASS

- 3 Muzzling the Competition: Rachel Speght and the Economics of Print 57
Lisa J. Schnell
- 4 Women's Popular Culture? Teaching the
Swetnam Controversy 79
Melinda J. Gough

PART III WOMEN'S SUBJECTIVITY IN MALE-AUTHORED TEXTS

- 5 The Broadside Ballad and the Woman's Voice 103
Sandra Clark

- 6 “Weele have a Wench shall be our Poet”:
Samuel Rowlands’ Gossip Pamphlets 121
Susan Gushee O’Malley

PART IV
GENERIC DEPARTURES: FIGURING THE
MATERNAL BODY, CONSTRUCTING FEMALE CULTURE

- 7 The Mat(t)er of Death: The Defense of Eve
and the Female Ars Moriendi 141
Patricia Phillippy
- 8 “Hens should be served first”: Prioritizing Maternal Production in the Early Modern Pamphlet Debate 161
Naomi J. Miller
- 9 Cross-Dressed Women and Natural Mothers:
“Boundary Panic” in Hic Mulier 185
Rachel Trubowitz

PART V
POLITICS, STATE, AND NATION

- 10 Monstrous Births and the Body Politic: Women’s Political Writings and the Strange and Wonderful Travails of Mistris
Parliament and Mrs. Rump 209
Katherine Romack
- 11 Elizabeth, Gender, and the Political Imaginary of Seventeenth-Century England 231
Mihoko Suzuki

- Index* 255