

Contents

Citation Information	vii
Notes on Contributors	ix
Acknowledgements	xi
1. Sociotechnical communication in engineering: an exploration and unveiling of common myths Jon A. Leydens	1
2. Winds of change: communication and wind power technology development in Denmark and Germany from 1973 to ca. 1985 Kristian H. Nielsen and Matthias Heymann	11
3. Professional identity on the Web: Engineering blogs and public engagement April Ann Kedrowicz and Katie Rose Sullivan	33
4. Analyzing the intersections of institutional and discourse identities in engineering work at the local level Marie C. Paretti and Lisa D. McNair	55
5. Building bridges – identifying generational communication characteristics to facilitate engineering collaboration and knowledge transfer across field-practicing engineers Mary Pilotte and Demetra Evangelou	79
Index	101