

Contents

Introduction by the Editors	7
 I. Reprisals and Claims
Michael Portmann Non-Slavic Groups as “Danger and Misery” for the State? Germans, Hungarians, and Italians in Communist Yugoslavia, 1943–1954	17
Petar Dragišić Tito’s War after the War: Yugoslav Territorial Claims against Austria and Italy, 1945–1949	31
 II. More than Enmity
Antonio Varsori Yugoslavia’s Foreign Policy in the Italian Diplomacy’s Interpretation: From the Schism with Moscow to the Origins of Non-Alignment	55
Massimo Bucarelli Economic Détente as a Means for Better Diplomatic Relations: Italy’s Efforts toward Yugoslavia, 1947–1949	71
Francesca Rolandi Escaping Yugoslavia: Italian and Austrian Refugee Policy toward Yugoslav Asylum Seekers after World War II	85
 III. Trieste and South Tyrol: Multifaceted Conflicts
Karlo Ruzicic-Kessler Trieste: A Case Study on Multilateral, Trans- and International Conflicts in the Alps-Adriatic Region	113

Maximilian Graf Austria and Trieste 1945–1955: Interconnected Histories of the Early Cold War	135
--	-----

Philipp Greilinger Caught between the State Treaty and the Right to Self-Determination: The South Tyrol Question in Austrian Post-War Media, 1945–1955	157
--	-----

Saša Mišić Yugoslavia and the South Tyrolean Question from the End of World War II until the Late 1950s	177
--	-----

IV. The Soviet Union and the Alps-Adriatic Region

Leonid Gibianskii The Soviet Union and the Emergence of Yugoslav Communist Territorial Claims against Italy and Austria, 1941–1945	201
--	-----

Wolfgang Mueller The Soviet Factor in the Alps-Adriatic Region, 1945–1947: The Issues of Trieste, Carinthia and South Tyrol	233
--	-----

Autorin und Autoren	262
----------------------------------	-----